

Exercise

This is an interview with 16-year-old Daniel Parker who loves the book “The Lord of the Rings”. Radio Ve asked him some questions to the topic:
What would you do if your favourite book was be banned?

- Fill in the blanks with the right if-clause. If you need help, look at the table at the first page.

Radio Ve: Welcome, Daniel! So, you love the book “The Lord of the Rings”?
Daniel: Of course I do! It’s one of the greatest books in our history!
In my opinion, it’s the best one that was ever written. If it is banned,
I ... [will] really die!
Radio Ve: Dying is not the thing that ... [will] help, don’t you think so?
What ... [will] do if the book ... [forbidden]?
Daniel: I think, I ... [will] start a demonstration! With thousands of people who love this book. There ... [will] be campaigns, signature actions, letters...!
Radio Ve: Wow, that’s a lot. But what ... [be] if this book ... [banned] in the past? If “The Lord of the Rings” ... [never appear] in our bookcases?
Daniel: Oh my God, I just don’t want to think about that! That ... [will be] terrible!
J.R.R. Tolkien ... [become] popular in his life time. The best book ever ... [not be] read by anyone! The base for so many fantasy books ... [not exist], Hobbits and Elves ... [never invented]!
Radio Ve: It ... [be] the end of the world for you, right?
Daniel: Yeah, that’s right.
Radio Ve: Well, thank you for your answers, Daniel. Have a good day and stick to our purpose!
If you ... [want] to tell us something about your favourite book, call us.
We’re going on with some great hits!

- Exercise:
What’s your favourite book? Why could it be banned?
What would you do if it was forbidden?

You can write a normal text or give an interview with your favourite radio station – be creative!

